

1.5.1.5 Head Protection

Head protective equipment protects against impact and head through the shell used for different purposes depending on the type of work performed. Employees of the molten metal splashing and types of helmets protect against electrical shock as types of helmets protect against falling objects and impacts are also (photo 1.4).

Top savers, should be replaced when it receives blows and cracks, scratches, etc. which should never be used. Go early protective fit is important for security.

Photo 1.4 Helmets