

4.1. The Components of Cost Accounts

Account while calculating the cost of materials, labor and overheads are taken into account. This must be calculated correctly that the three factors in determining the price of goods. Today's large enterprises are in themselves establish the relevant units able to take its place in the calculation of these elements correctly and therefore competition.