

3.1.5 Needle Types for Machine

Each sewing machine has a specific needle system. This system is indicated by a code number. Code number; the shape of the needle, length, butt thickness, butt length, end shapes, information about the structure of the thread channel and neck. The lengths and ends of the needles used in the machines are different from each other.

In the selection of the needle, firstly the suitability of the sewing machine system and then the properties of the product to be sewn are taken into consideration.