

2.2. ENVIRONMENTAL PROBLEMS

Environment: They are a combination of live and inanimate, they called each other and the environment affect the environment are affected by each other.

Ecology: All live and the science that studies the interaction of inanimate called ecology.

Of current world environmental pollution research 50% did that the last 35 years reveals occur. one of the major sources of environmental problems is rapid population growth. Rapid population growth, unplanned urbanization brings with it. Created to eliminate the need of the growing population of good habitat urban areas leads to the emergence of urban problems. These environmental problems are connected, with one of the other of the releasing effect of environmental problems.

Air pollution due to the use of poor quality fuel, particularly in big cities in our country has reached massive proportions. reductions began to be seen in the use of natural gas in recent years with the spread of air pollution. Air pollution is increasing, particularly in industry.

In our country, due to fulfill the responsibilities of the municipalities have not created via regular garbage storage areas to be established and timely treatment plants leads to increased environmental problems.

Regular and non-existence of any kind of organized industrial zones with infrastructure and caused the largest share of the industry in environmental issues.

and more irregular drug use in the field of agriculture has led to the emergence of soil pollution problems. Soil pollution as an environmental problem should also be addressed.

It is rated recycling of expanded plastic material forming pollution, glass products and the disposal of solid waste such as metallic materials has led to problems.

the limitation of carbon emissions to prevent global warming in a period of great importance meat that Turkey's total carbon dioxide emissions, according to data of 2005 compared with the European Union-year to 215.9 million tonnes in seventh place, while the industrial sector emissions are listed first.

The industry produced in Turkey and kept arises because the inventory of chemicals used, there is no inventory work-related nature of the waste. However, inventory records by studies in recent years have started to be created.

Water resources 20 years ago, is on the wane decreased 4 thousand cubic meters of water per 1400 cubic meters of water falls today. Turkey "water poor" has begun to take place between countries.